Cairns In Your Mind

Throughout the history, travelers have collaborated in building Cairns to make the path and collectively navigate new territory. Today, stone cairns are often used to mark hiking trails or directional markers. They often point the way home, represent safety, hope and friendship. Stacking stones also can be a form of meditation. Our Cairns are stacked up high with Natural Beach Pebbles and River rocks. Every single piece is hand-selected from remote Java island to create calming and peaceful environment.

Hong's Temple

Mr. Hong Won was a man who cherished his grandchildren above all else, and his time with them was his upmost source of joy in life. The tree they rested under together became a symbol of their love, and he decided to build a natural sitting area there where he could share laughter with his loved ones. This is where the idea and the inspiration for Hong's Temple was originated.

Parasite Wood Carvings
Parasite woods come from a parasitic plant, a mushroom-like growth that imbeds itself into the bark of a Chinaberry tree and gets its nourishment from the tree's sap. The growths are then cut and carved into beautiful creatures by the talented Bali artisans. Each piece of parasite wood is totally unique which is what really makes these carvings stand out.
